THE MEXICAN WAY

Late telegraphic advices from San Antonio, Tex., convey the intelligence that the place is filling with refugees from Mexico, people who were offensively partisan against Diaz in the late presidential campaign. Not only are a lot of the dictator's political opponents leaving the country by way of the United States, but others are going to Europe.

That is the sort of a republic they have in Mexico. What we conceive of freedom of speech, a free press and free institutions, are things unknown in our southern neighbor. You stand in with the powers that be, or you take the worst of it.

The writer once witnessed a presidential canvass in Mexico. It was at Jaurez, six years ago, when Diaz was re-elected to his term just closing. A man in uniform, accompanied by a policeman and a civil officer, went from house to house, evidently following a list which he had in his hand. The householder's vote was recorded then and there, in a little book carried for that purpose. But it was noticed that if the man of the house was not in favor of the dictator his vote was not entered at all.

It is all well enough, perhaps, for magazine writers to tell us in graphic terms what a glorious country Mexico is, and how enjoyable life is there—for they get paid by the yard for what they write—but any civilized man who knows anything about the subject, who has resided in Mexico for any length of time, knows that there are many drawbacks to existence there. A citizen of some powerful government can live there in comparative peace, because the Mexican government from policy protects him, but the condition of the poorer classes is worse infinitely than the serfdom of Russia. Their peonage is worse than slavery ever was in the ante-bellum southern states.

About the last thing a stranger need look for in that country is free institutions. The habeas corpus is a thing unknown. If you get in jail there you stay there until they get ready to let you out. And their code of legal procedure gives the magistracy almost unlimited power.

What a commentary on a modern supposedly civilized country—and one rated a republic—that its citizens who dared to vote as they think must give up everything they have and flee for their lives! And yet, after all, the system of government they have is perhaps the only kind the vast bulk of its people could appreciate. It must always be borne in mind that the bulk of the population of Mexico is illiterate and in this generation incapable of much advancement.

"Never swap horses when crossing a stream," was a homely aphorism of Lincoln's. But the advice is applicable to the people of Nevada these days in the matter of the selection of a United States senator. Why relegate a public servant whose ability and loyalty have been tested and approved for a man who, admitting much in his favor, can yet be of but little service to his constituency during a first term? Has anyone yet offered one conclusive reason why Senator Nixon should not be honored with another term? And, since no such reason exists, why retire him just when he is beginning to reach the point of his greatest usefulness to the state?

Last year's corn crop in the United States was worth $1,720,000,000, according to Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. This vast amount of wealth—in comparison with which the production of all the metals in the world sinks into insignificance—was produced in 120 days, or at the rate of fourteen millions a day. Man's labor and intelligence, the daily sunshine and occasional rain, created this stupendous amount of wealth. The corn plant is a rather homely one to most eyes, but it gets there just the same.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles. Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc. Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; an unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $2.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 11295 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has a great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.
